1984 Mercedes-Benz 380SL R107 – An Exceptional 58,000 km Example

$99,950.00

It is becoming increasingly difficult to find an R107 Mercedes-Benz SL of this calibre, and this magnificent 1984 Mercedes-Benz 380SL is quite simply one of those cars that needs to be seen to be fully appreciated.

Finished in the quintessential Mercedes-Benz combination of Signal Red with Parchment leather, it has travelled an extraordinarily low 58,000 kilometres since new and presents in a condition entirely consistent with a car that has been cherished throughout its life.

This is the desirable updated-series 380SL, immediately distinguished inside by details including the additional timber treatment surrounding the gear selector, giving the cabin the richer and more luxurious appearance of the later R107 models.

Under the bonnet is Mercedes-Benz's smooth 3.8-litre V8, coupled to the four-speed automatic transmission – a combination that makes the 380SL a wonderfully relaxed grand tourer while retaining the engineering quality for which this generation of Mercedes-Benz became famous.

The interior is simply beautiful. The Parchment leather, timberwork, dashboard, carpets, switchgear and trim have all been exceptionally well preserved, and importantly the dashboard still houses its original Becker sound system – exactly the sort of detail collectors increasingly look for in an R107.

It comes complete with both its factory hardtop and folding soft top, allowing it to be enjoyed as an elegant coupé, a traditional roadster or a proper open-top grand tourer.

The previous owner has recently become unwell and is unfortunately no longer able to drive, which is the reason this remarkable Mercedes-Benz is now being offered for sale.

There is nothing at all to spend. This is not an R107 that requires a list of jobs to bring it up to standard – it is an extraordinarily well-preserved car that is ready to be enjoyed immediately.

The R107 SL has become firmly established as one of Mercedes-Benz's great modern classics. While there are always R107s available, genuinely exceptional, low-kilometre examples are another proposition altogether.

With its 58,000 km, magnificent Signal Red/Parchment colour combination, V8 engine, both tops, original Becker equipment and superb condition, this 380SL represents a rare opportunity for the collector or enthusiast searching for a car well above the usual standard.
